"HIV: The Early Years"

JAMES W. CURRAN, MD, MPH

Dean, Rollins School of Public Health, Emory University
Co-Director, Emory Center for AIDS Research

Friday, November 1

2:00 pm | Carey Auditorium, Hesburgh Library

In 1981, Jim Curran was tapped to lead a CDC task force charged with determining what was behind the first cases of what we now know as AIDS. Dr. Curran will describe the investigation of the discovery of AIDS and lessons learned for public health.
